Summary: A short poem.

The Sigh of The Spartans

The Sigh of the Spartan

Plasma roars and bullets sing

Blood coats the surface of the ring

By night, no light, we fight

For we can never truly die

Each one a child made to die

Our deaths are hidden by a lie

They say, MIA, in the fray

For we can never truly die

One by one we leave our lives

So that everyone may survive

To brawl, and fall, for all

For we can never truly die

However valiantly we strive

We all know that Death itself is alive

We try, to sigh, and lie,

But no

For we can never truly die

End
file.
